The Award

Dr. Jim Brooks was the 23rd President of the STSA, and a life-time supporter of the Association. He was a great mentor to countless residents and students during his career at the Medical College of Virginia. To pay tribute to Dr. Brooks and extend his legacy, his colleagues and STSA are uniting to raise $50,000 to endow a premier award in his honor. The Brooks Scholarship will be given on an annual basis to a promising 2nd, 3rd, or 4th year medical student in the STSA region who is interested in CT surgery. The recipient will receive funding to attend the STSA Annual Meeting and benefit from the guidance of STSA members.

"His dedication to patient care and teaching was the main reason I chose to pursue thoracic surgery as a medical student."

The Teacher and the Mentor

James Brooks was an icon at the Medical College of Virginia for over half a century, and under his mentorship trained hundreds of residents and students during his time there. Those of us who remember Dr. Brooks recall warmly that he was a creature of habit. The hat, the backward scrubs, the hanging stethoscope, the Dove soap, the daily Hershey bar, and the green pen. His passion on autumn weekends included many trips for more than 40 years to hail the Washington Redskins. Hence, we "hail" Dr. Brooks not only for being an outstanding teacher, clinician and surgeon, but also for his consummate professionalism - a true southern gentleman, a role model for all to emulate. Perhaps his biggest contribution to medicine is reflected in the countless number of students, residents, and fellows that he trained. Although he dedicated more than half of his life to the teaching and the healing of others, his true passion was his family. His smile, the twinkle in his eyes and his contagious sense of humor delighted his family, friends, patients, and colleagues. And even though he retired from the operating room years ago, he continued to go into work each day to teach and work in the admissions office until the very end.
